2011-2013 Compound Annual Growth Rate

Magazines and the Future

- Magazine “brands” create content that transcends platform and can move to most any platform desired by readers:
 - Websites/portals
 - Digital magazines on digital newsstands: e.g. magazinescanada.zinio.com
 - Move to Facebook, Twitter and other social networks
 - Mobile access, e.g. Smartphones
 - Portable eReaders and tablets, e.g. Kindle; iPad
 - Content already moves to TV, radio, books, DVDs, etc.
 - Exciting new digital delivery systems are ramping up
- Printed magazines remain the platform of choice

Magazines and the Future

- The ongoing launch of digital brand extensions will ensure:
 - Continued relevance to consumers
 - Build-out new and emerging audiences
 - Continued industry competitiveness
- Magazines will be ready when the consumer is ready

The Bottom Line

- Magazine fundamentals are strong: launches; circulation; readership; qualitative scores
- In a world where consumers are getting harder to impact meaningfully, readers opt in to magazines, driven by personal passions. It's "My Magazine"
- Magazine content engages, created by Canadians for Canadians
- Magazine ads are an accepted and integral part of the magazine package driving advertising receptivity, not avoidance
- Magazine readers have an "action orientation" that drives word-of-mouth, web search and web visits
- Magazines significantly drive key communication metrics that are hardest to impact: Favourability and Intent (Persuasion)
